U.S. Marine Corps at Quantico Program

Itinerary

On Thursday evening we depart at 4:30 pm and place participants in individual and team-based leadership scenarios similar to those encountered by officer candidates for the Marine Corps. Friday is given to solving logistical and strategic problems with guidance and feedback by Marine officers. Formed into small "fire teams," we face navigation challenges, surmount physical barriers, establish plans of action, and recreate battlefield scenarios. We conclude the day by extracting the enduring lessons for company leadership, and senior military commanders guide us in a discussion of how they have led their forces and built leadership within the ranks. We will return on Friday at 10 pm.
