annual leadership stewardship report

2017-2018

leadership.wharton.upenn.edu
We are pleased to share with you our annual report from the 2017-2018 academic year. We began the year with the celebration of the incoming classes of students and ended the year with the 7th annual Lipman Family Prize award ceremony and the 22nd annual Leadership Conference.

In the pages ahead, you will find overviews of the main audiences we serve as well as overviews from each of our Leadership Initiatives: the Anne and John McNulty Leadership Program, the Center for Leadership and Change Management, and the Barry & Marie Lipman Family Prize.

We hope you find the content within both informative and inspiring and, as always, we look for your advice and guidance on how best to maintain our levels of quality and excellence across our audiences and our many constituents.

Thank you for your continued engagement and support and we look forward to seeing our board members in New York City on September 12, 2018 and on Penn’s campus February 26-27, 2019.

Dear Board Members, Partners, and Friends,

We are pleased to share with you our annual report from the 2017-2018 academic year. We began the year with the celebration of the incoming classes of students and ended the year with the 7th annual Lipman Family Prize award ceremony and the 22nd annual Leadership Conference.

In the pages ahead, you will find overviews of the main audiences we serve as well as overviews from each of our Leadership Initiatives: the Anne and John McNulty Leadership Program, the Center for Leadership and Change Management, and the Barry & Marie Lipman Family Prize.

We hope you find the content within both informative and inspiring and, as always, we look for your advice and guidance on how best to maintain our levels of quality and excellence across our audiences and our many constituents.

Thank you for your continued engagement and support and we look forward to seeing our board members in New York City on September 12, 2018 and on Penn’s campus February 26-27, 2019.
At the McNulty Leadership Program, we see leadership as the act of making a positive difference in the world. We enable and support every student in the pursuit of deeper self-awareness and improved leadership skills to advance individual success and team and community performance.

We develop as leaders and teammates by testing our knowledge, skills, and abilities through new experiences. Our programs provide many different roles and contexts in which students can learn. Whether it is through our community-wide programs like Authors@Wharton and Wharton Leadership Ventures to our many fellowships and student groups, we work to give students and executives opportunities to:

TAKE ACTION: By embracing leadership moments of their own making, students can increase their resilience, adaptability, and capacity to lead in an authentic way.

REFLECT: By coaching, mentoring, and gathering feedback from others, students can develop their self-awareness, realize salient character strengths, and identify personal opportunities for personal growth and development.

EXPERIMENT: By accepting stretch experiences, students can test and practice their range of leadership styles from directive to empowering to transformational.

APPLY: By putting leadership lessons learned in and out of the classroom into deliberate practice, students can build skills, especially the ability to:
- Think creatively and critically
- Use emotional intelligence
- Communicate well with others
- Give and receive feedback
- Exercise influence
- Motivate oneself and others
- Work well in a team
- Contribute to synergistic group decision-making
- Cultivate organizational awareness, especially in an understanding of organizational culture

The 2017-18 academic year focused on enhancing and adapting our current suite of programs so that we may better serve our many audiences and deepen participation and impact.

Some highlights include:
- We organized and ran over 30 program and speaker events, and conferences from September 2017-June 2018
- Due to the increased success of the Authors@Wharton Speaker Series, the Wharton Leadership Lectures administration moved from the MBA Program Office to the McNulty Leadership Program. In partnership with Wharton Events, we now create, implement, and manage roughly three to seven additional speaker events per year that add to the reputation of the McNulty Leadership Program as the thought leader in leadership development throughout the Wharton School and the University of Pennsylvania.
- We expanded our MBA for Executives offerings to include additional workshops and a modified version of the MBA program, P3: Purpose, Passion, and Principles.
- We revamped the Executive Education course The Leadership Journey. The new course, entitled Becoming a Leader of Leaders: Pathways for Success, launched this May includes new research, new team exercises and case discussions designed to provide participants with the strategies to strengthen leadership and build highly effective teams for today and tomorrow.

As a Venture Chair and Venture Fellow, I have learned so much about myself and the power of mentorship. The UG Ventures brings students on experiential learning trips because the outdoors can allow us to pressure-test our character in a realistic way. I’ve been trained to lead groups of students with the idea that leadership, teamwork, and communication are more easily mastered outside the classroom. WLV has taught me the cascade effect that a single teacher, venture fellow, or role model can have. Through empowering each student to find their own voice of leadership on these journeys, they can magnify the impact they can make on a community.”

Through empowering each student to find their own voice...they can magnify the impact on community undergraduate (overview)

The first full year of the Leadership Journey curriculum incorporates the following key elements, designed to allow students the opportunity to grow and learn in a flexible environment.

- 5 credit courses for each of the students’ four years, each course building on the leadership development coursework of the previous year.
- The addition of Legal Studies and Business Ethics coursework to the fundamentals
- Revisions to the general education requirement and an increase in the number of unrestricted electives to increase flexibility to balance breadth and depth in the liberal arts and business
- Greater emphasis on innovation and technology and the global economy

All incoming students begin their leadership journey as freshman and take a series of four half-credit modules throughout their undergraduate years.

The quality of people is phenomenal, including faculty and students alike. I have never had such meaningful human connection and intellectual discourse in any other forum. Furthermore, the organic nature of Wharton’s programming provides students with the opportunity to shape their own path as well as drive new initiatives they would like to see take hold at the university. The quality of the students, quality of the classes, and the strong network. Since it is a big school there are also so many opportunities no matter what you want to do. The McNulty Leadership Program is an incredible asset full of diverse and meaningful programs. They have an opportunity for everyone.”
MBA students are introduced to the McNulty Leadership Program during PreTerm in August of their first-year. Students meet their learning teams during the two-day Learning Team Experience and are immediately called to act and collaborate with one another, creating a vision and team-operating principles for their group that will last through the end of their first core course, Management 610: Foundations of Teamwork and Leadership.

Once the MGMT 610 course ends, students move into their first semester.

Various information sessions are held throughout the fall and spring semesters to provide students the opportunity to hear about our co-curricular and fellowship programs.

Through a generous endowment from William P. Lauder, the Leadership Fellows has been renamed to the William P. Lauder Wharton Leadership Fellows. This gift will provide sustainable resources to select, train, and support the Fellows in their work with first-year MBA students as well as the ability to bring a new one-day leadership symposium to the program that will be dedicated to exploring leadership principles in action.

MBA students are able to choose from 26 unique leadership development opportunities within the McNulty Leadership Program ranging from fellowships to coaching to ventures to Authors@Wharton Speaker Series. Over 1200 students in the MBA program (69%) participate in one of our programs.

The Wharton venture was the most physically grueling thing I’ve ever done, but worth every step. Being emotionally and physically spent led me to introspect on being able to push myself and my decision to join a startup.
Students in the MBA for Executives East (WEMBA East) and MBA for Executives West (WEMBA West) can receive six sessions with a coach as part of the Coaching and Feedback Program.

Both programs (EMBA East and EMBA West) are given the chance to participate in the Leadership Ventures Rowing Intensive and the Leadership Ventures WEMBA-only Alaska Venture, which gave them additional opportunities to focus on teamwork and challenge in unfamiliar contexts.

Open to all students and held on the last day of classes before graduation, the WEMBA Capstone serves as a final day of reflection for the Wharton MBA for Executives experience. Members of Class 41 were brought together as a full class to share their reflections and what the WEMBA experience meant to them. The learning teams were reconvened and members were asked to provide feedback on each other’s leadership development as a result of attending Wharton.

Members of the graduating class commit to carrying their Wharton experience forward into the future and explore how their lives are and will be different as a result of attending the WEMBA program.

Leadership development opportunities outside of the classroom are highly customized to the needs of our executive MBAs and working professionals.

The world is changing and I felt it was time to step up in terms of my role in my country (Nigeria) and play a significant, important, and impactful role in leading change. In my AMP courses, I loved the fact that Wharton talked about business not from the myopic point of view of only finance, but married that with new topics like emotional intelligence, the strength of millennials, and the importance of communication. The AMP curriculum challenged me to push myself to the limits of my responsibility as a leader.

“The AMP curriculum challenged me to push myself to the limits”
With the General Management Program, senior executives are given a unique opportunity to accelerate their potential by infusing new knowledge and prepare for new challenges ahead. With the help of professional executive coaches, the program allows students to tailor their leadership journey to their specific needs. Participants in the GMP program are offered the McNulty Coaching and Feedback program, allowing them to receive six coaching sessions and a wrap-up session.

Our flagship course, the five-week Advanced Management Program offers comprehensive content and an experiential approach that creates an invaluable, reflective pause from the everyday CEO routine. AMP students travel to Randall’s Island, the training ground for the New York City Fire Department and participate in the one-day FDNY Firefighting Simulation. During the five-week program, coaching is also delivered, both in teams and individually, to accelerate learning and personalized growth. Coaching sessions continue after the program concludes.

The two-day CEO Academy brings together 15 of the world’s most well-respected current and former chief executives to share what worked while leading their companies through major change.

The five-day Creating and Leading High-Performing Teams program is a unique executive leadership course that combines the best insights from research and case studies, all tested in the context of hands-on, experiential learning.

The five-day Leadership Edge Program uses a range of highly interactive approaches plus daily integration sessions to help students transition from technical roles to leadership roles.

The five-day Becoming a Leader of Leaders: Pathways for Success blends interactive lectures with team exercises, case discussions, computer simulations, and physical challenges that put the principles of leadership into practice.
center for leadership and change management

The mission of the Center is to stimulate basic research and practical application in the area of leadership and change, foster an understanding of how to develop organizational leadership, and support the leadership development agendas of both the Wharton School and the University of Pennsylvania.

The Center hosted three conferences this year. The Organizational Behavior Conference was in November 2017. Conference presenters were junior faculty on the cutting-edge research in the field of Organizational Behavior. Led by Assistant Professor Drew Carton, attendance for the two-day invite-only conference is kept small to provide an intimate setting that fosters collaboration ties and a supportive atmosphere.

The 22nd annual Leadership Conference, entitled Leading in a World of Seismic Shifts was held in June 2018. Speakers included Henry Timms, founder of Giving Tuesday; Sam Walker, Wall Street Journal Editor, Graham Charles, President & founder of the Polar Tourism Guides Association; Jeff Bolton, CAO of the Mayo Clinic; and Kat Cole, Chief of Fire & Aviation, Department of the Interior.

Dr. Sigal Barsade continues to manage the study of emotions and organizational behavior through the Katz Fund for Leadership and Emotional Intelligence. This fund enables the continued preeminence of the Wharton School in the study and teaching of emotional intelligence, organizational culture, and leadership development and directly benefits organizational leaders, scholars, students, and alumni through the creation of new scholarly research.

The Barry & Marie Lipman Family Prize hosted its 7th annual award ceremony on April 20, 2018. In its 7th year, the Lipman Family Prize received applications from over 100 organizations that are dedicated to a range of global causes including economic development, education, environmental sustainability, gender equality, healthcare, human rights, food security, legal aid, safe water, poverty alleviation, and workers rights.

The 2018 top honoree prize ($250,000 in unrestricted funds) was awarded to MyAgro.

MyAgro is a nonprofit social enterprise that enables smallholder farmers in Africa to finance themselves by using their mobile phones to purchase high-quality seeds and fertilizer and receive agricultural training so they may increase their incomes and move out of poverty.

Operation ASHA expands access to high-quality and affordable healthcare, particularly in regards to the treatment of tuberculosis, to disadvantaged communities by providing the last mile connectivity, i.e. service delivery to the underserved in India, Cambodia, and South America.

Ubuntu Pathways is a global model for breaking the cycle of poverty that provides South Africa’s most vulnerable children with an integrated support system of health, education, and household stability, from cradle to career.

In May of 2018, the Lipman Family Prize invited all past and current honorees the opportunity to join Lipman Program staff and guest faculty members to a curated learning opportunity. Entitled, Growing What Works, and sponsored by the McNulty Leadership Program and the Lipman Family Prize, the two and a half day conference supported the transfer of knowledge regarding the stellar models of our honorees all around the world.

Over the course of 2.5 days, the topics included:
- Scaling Models
- Change Management
- Knowledge Management
- Learning Community Formations

Speakers included our own Jeff Klein and Umi Howard, Management Professor Martin Ihrig, Director of the Wharton Social Enterprise Program James D. Thompson and guests from our external consult partner, Spring Impact. 17 participants from eight honoree organizations attended the conference.
Now in the 3rd year of a 5-year pilot cycle and with the generous financial backing of David Pottruck, the Penn Athletics Wharton Leadership Academy curriculum included lectures, workshops, experiential sessions and more generated through the collaboration of the athletics department and Wharton.

In 2017-2018, incoming freshmen student-athletes from seven teams enrolled in the program. The focus was on the captains and the incoming freshman as they make the transition to college athletics and university life. Team captains and coaches participated in leadership development that created a culture where student-athletes and staff members shared a common vocabulary and worked symbiotically toward a common objective, in competition and beyond.

At the end of the 5-year pilot cycle, a dozen senior scholar-athletes who have distinguished themselves as leaders in the Leadership Academy will be named Pottruck Fellows. Upon receiving this honor, members of this fellowship program will commit themselves to mentoring Academy participants during the next three years.

The rollout of the program continues as follows:

- 2018-2019: Captains and freshman from 14 teams (and the continuing pilot of sophomores from seven teams)
- 2019-2020: Freshman (and the continuing pilot of captains and sophomores from 14 teams and juniors from seven teams)
- 2020-2021: Freshman (and the continuing pilot of sophomores and juniors from 14 teams and seniors from seven teams)

In 2017, The Penn Vet-Wharton team applied for and secured a three-year grant for the delegation event from the Penn China Research and Engagement Fund (CREF). The delegation, hosted by Anne M. Greenhalgh of the McNulty Leadership Program in collaboration with Thomas Parsons of the University of Pennsylvania Veterinary School, included 36 participants, many of those international C-suite executives. Talks by Wharton’s Mike Useem and Harbir Singh, co-authors of Fortune Makers, were particularly well-received.

ThePenn Veterinary Partnership focuses on developing an integrated training program for upper level managers and executives in the Chinese swine industry. The basic program will be repeated annually over a three year period in order to keep class size manageable yet accommodate as much of the Chinese swine industry leadership as possible. Each year a four-day training seminar will be held at the Penn Wharton China Center and then a subsequent five-day training program based at the Penn Vet Swine Center which will include visits to prototypical facilities in the US swine industry. The goal of this multi-site training program is provide both conceptual and hands-on experience for Chinese swine industry executives that focus on the different levels of opportunities for increased efficiency and improved sustainability that have driven success in the US swine industry. Each year two Penn Veterinary Students in the Food Animals Fellows program will be supported to conduct collaborative projects addressing opportunities for change within a sustainable model of the Chinese pork supply chain and help realize the improved efficiencies needed to feed a growing world population hungry for animal protein such as pork.

In October 2018, a five day training program will be held in China, attended by the same 36 attendees.

"We want to have an impact on the industry, but we also want to find out how to generate new knowledge. We’re still in the discovery phase, but our end goal is to design research projects that will fill knowledge gaps and help the Chinese swine industry.”

— Anne M. Greenhalgh & Thomas Parsons

What Dave Pottruck has identified so successfully with this program is that the culture of leadership inherent in a competitive team setting provides an excellent ‘laboratory’ for training future leaders. His gift enables us to adapt our integrated, experiential approach to leadership development, extending the work we have done with students, managers and executives at all levels to now include scholar-athletes.”

— Jeff Klein
leadership advisory board members

Established in 2004, the Leadership Advisory Board provides an essential link between the Wharton community and the foremost leaders in business, public service, government, entertainment, and sports. He also served as the Provost, Senior Vice President for Research, and Professor of Environmental Studies at The New School in New York City. Joseph stepped down from this position to serve as a member of President Obama’s Transition Team for Defense matters in December 2008.

He spent his first 12 years in academia as a faculty member of Oklahoma State University, where he was a Professor of Political Science, later becoming head of the Department. During his many years of public service, Joseph has lectured at numerous universities around the world and taught public policy as an Adjunct Professor at Georgetown University while working in Washington, D.C. In 2001, he served as the Acting Secretary of the Army and earlier he served as the Assistant Secretary of the Army for Civil Works from 1998-2001. He has had extensive experience working in the U.S. Congress and other departments within the executive branch. Joseph served as the Senior Policy Advisor for Water Resources at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency during the Clinton Administration. He also worked in the U.S. Congress in various capacities, including directing a bi-partisan congressional caucus in the House and Senate and as a budget analyst and assistant to the Chair of the U.S. House Committee on the Budget. Earlier in his career, he worked as a policy advisor to the Secretary in the Department of the Interior.

Joseph received his Bachelor’s degree from Adelphi University, his Master’s degree from the Oklahoma State University, and his Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of Missouri-Columbia.
