We are pleased to share with you our annual stewardship report for the 2018-2019 academic year. We began this year by leading the first-year MBAs through pre-term and introducing WH101, the first step of the new requirement, The Leadership Journey to Wharton freshman. This year also saw two new classes of executive MBAs, two classes of Advanced Management Program (AMP) for Executives, and the launch of the China AMP. We concluded the year with the 8th annual Lipman Family Prize Award Ceremony and the 23rd Annual Leadership Conference, entitled “Leading in a Context of Conflict.”

In the following pages, you will find highlights of the four main audiences we serve – undergraduate, graduate, executive MBA, and executive—and snapshots of the McNulty Leadership Program, the Center for Leadership and Change Management, and the Barry & Marie Lipman Family Prize.

We invite you to read this report with care – in more than one sense of the word. We depend on your shrewd guidance and heartfelt advice as we strive to design top-quality programming, to deliver it with compassion, and to build lifelong learning communities for the students and participants we serve.

With best regards,

[Letter]

McNulty Leadership Program
At the McNulty Leadership Program (MLP), we see leadership as the act of making a positive difference in the world. We enable and support every student in the pursuit of deeper self-awareness and improved leadership skills to advance individual success, as well as team and community performance.

We develop as leaders and teammates by testing our knowledge, skills, and abilities through new experiences. Our programs provide many different roles and contexts in which students can learn. Whether it is through community-wide programs like the Authors@Wharton Speaker Series and the Executive Coaching and Feedback Program or open enrollment programs like Ventures and P3: Purpose, Passion, and Principles to our many fellowship and student groups, we work to give students and executives opportunities to:

TAKE ACTION: By embracing leadership moments of their own making, our students can increase their resilience, adaptability, and capacity to lead in an authentic way.

REFLECT: By coaching, mentoring, and gathering feedback from others, our students can develop their real self-awareness, realize their salient character strengths, and identify opportunities for personal growth and development.

EXPERIMENT: By accepting stretch experiences, our students can test and practice their range of leadership styles from directive to empowering to transformational.

APPLY: By putting leadership lessons learned in and out of their classroom in to deliberate practice, our students can build skills, especially the ability to:
- Think creatively and critically
- Use emotional intelligence
- Communicate well with others
- Give and receive feedback
- Exercise influence
- Motivate oneself and others
- Work well in a team
- Contribute to synergistic group decision-making
- Cultivate organizational awareness, especially in an understanding of "Incubate Ideas to Transform Business"

66 leadership development opportunities

7 fellowships and student groups

245+ partnerships

Infographic taken from the Wharton School More than Ever Campaign
Knowing that self-reflection and evaluation are vital components for effective leadership and organizational success, the McNulty Leadership Program created a set of five working teams in May 2019. Comprised of four or five staff members, these working teams meet regularly to brainstorm, research, and provide recommendations for five internal strategic initiatives. Each initiative’s charter is outlined below:

One Student, One Fellowship
- Examine self and others to identify criteria for selection, and the scaffolding that supports a McNulty fellowship.
- Learn from findings, identify commonalities, and highlight the necessary differences.
- Recommend initiatives that will boost collaboration within and between fellowships. Create synergies, efficiencies, and a high standard of excellence.

Green Operations
- Renew Green Office certification and achieve a level 4 status.
- Assess and amend purchasing power and create a standard product list to share with team.
- Create an MLP Catering Standard to share with our top catering partners.

Marketing/Branding
- Evaluate opportunities for increased brand awareness of our programs to student audiences.
- Link all programs to MLP by way of event signage and social media badges.
- Create a survey asking students to select their programs of interest and use data for targeted pushes during recruitment times.

People Lab
- Design launch and dissemination of the People Lab survey/report to the incoming MBA Class of 2021.
- Coordinate the integration of the People Lab survey with MLP 360 to streamline communication and the student experience.
- Identify key milestones and necessary considerations for successful delivery to students and training of Leadership Fellows (LFs) and coaches.

Women’s Leadership Initiatives
- Evaluate opportunities and challenges within Wharton regarding gender equity.
- Advance the creation and promotion of women’s leadership programming initiatives with MLP.

conferences and speakers

Authors@Wharton Speaker Series

Launched in 2012 by Professor Adam Grant, Saul P. Steinberg Professor of Management, the Authors@Wharton Speaker Series is delivered by the McNulty Leadership Program and has quickly become one of our most popular and well-attended programs. We bring world-renowned speakers to campus with the intention of enriching intellectual engagement and encouraging dialogue between students, faculty, staff and alumni. We have had authors from a variety of industries, ranging from more traditional business and management to sports, entertainment, and current affairs.

Every year, we select 16 students to serve on the Authors@Wharton Student Committee. MBA and Undergraduate students serve on this committee for one year, and assist with speaker selection, event management and marketing and stewarding guests during their time on campus.

During the 2018-2019 academic year, there were five Authors@Wharton events. See chart below:

Wharton Leadership Lectures

In partnership with the Dean’s office, the McNulty Leadership Program supports the delivery of Wharton Leadership Lectures. These lectures provide a forum for the most senior executives from the public and private sectors to address pertinent leadership issues and share their insights with the entire Wharton community. The lectures have featured many of the world’s most influential leaders and policy-makers with topics ranging from telling the story of a path to leadership, industry-specific leadership examples or discussions of the various challenges CEOs can face in their line of work. During the 2018-2019 academic year, there were three Leadership Lectures.

Leadership Conference

The theme of the 23rd annual Wharton Leadership Conference was “Leading in a Context of Conflict.” In today’s business environment, leaders are faced with rising demands for greater accountability and the need to tackle social issues. Technology adds to the tension as the job market increasingly shifts toward automation. At the 23rd Wharton Leadership Conference, the distinguished speakers included CEOs from telecommunications, insurance, and finance; a former NSA director and admiral, a state governor, a talent specialist at a major professional services firm, a business diversity expert, and others. They shared how they have steered through this environment of conflict to achieve notable success in their chosen fields.

The leaders of tomorrow begin their journey to changing the world in the McNulty Leadership Program’s undergraduate program. Wharton Undergraduates embark on the Leadership Journey, an academic requirement that spans all four years. Incorporating half-credit modules, the Journey gives students the opportunity to learn about themselves, build skills, and gain business acumen. By the time they graduate, students are better equipped to excel as leaders throughout their careers.

A Leadership Journey Integrated Over Four Years

- Freshman: Wharton 101: Discover curricular opportunities (business pathways), understand your own strengths and leadership potential, and prepare for the Wharton Experience.
- Sophomore: Wharton 201: Develop your writing and presentation skills for business.
- Juniors: Wharton 301: Build your teamwork and interpersonal skills.
- Seniors: Wharton 401: Participate in integrative/capstone projects or courses that tackle applied problems.

Undergraduate Ventures

This year, the Undergraduate Ventures program ran five Expeditions, four Intensives and four Workshops to diverse locations all around the globe. Facilitating self-discovery, leadership, and character development, Leadership Ventures enable our undergraduate students to step out of their comfort zone, exceed personal limitations, and experience leadership firsthand. These immersive programs provide a set of engaged, hands-on experiences for exploring and mastering the capabilities for effective individual and team leadership in business and beyond.

"Both the Wharton 101 TAs and WLV have offered me training, and experiences that have helped me learn and grow as a person. More importantly, these fellowships/organizations give me an outlet to give back and teach/help people with the skills and experiences that I have been given."

- Ryan Pruitt, W’19, Undergraduate Wharton 101 TA and Leadership Venture participant

"The Leadership Ventures were the pathways through which I made some of my closest friends and best memories. They taught me leadership, compassion, and the benefit of learning by doing and learning by listening to those around you - and how to have an amazing time while doing it!"

Upper level students serve as Wharton 101 TAs and help deliver the Freshman Gateway Course. TAs in this service role help develop the leadership capacity of fellow students through action and reflection.

Undergraduate Venture Fellows

Venture Fellows are carefully selected sophomores, juniors, or seniors who serve as student leaders and help with Venture marketing efforts, conduct pre-trip information sessions and activities. The Fellows serve as coaches and facilitators on Ventures and/or Intensives and help collect feedback after the ventures to ensure continuous improvement of the program.

Wharton’s MBA students are introduced to the McNulty Leadership Program in Pre-Term of their first year. From that point onward, the Program serves as a fundamental force in shaping their time at Wharton. Students meet their learning teams during the two-day Learning Team Experience and are immediately called to act and collaborate with one another, creating a vision and team-operating principles for their group that will last through the end of their first core course, Management 610: Foundations of Teamwork and Leadership. Once the MGMT610 course ends, students move into their first semester.

Various information sessions are held throughout the semester to provide students the opportunity to hear about our co-curricular and fellowship programs. In total, MBA students are able to choose from 30 unique leadership development opportunities with the McNulty Leadership Program – ranging from Fellowships to Ventures to the Authors@Wharton Speaker Series.

“[I achieved my goal of a 360 leadership development program during my 2 years at Wharton. I set goals and identified development areas with my Exec Coach during the first year that I was then able to implement and try out with my IY classmates as a Leadership Fellow. I also enjoyed learning lessons from industry thought leaders first-hand as part of the Authors@Wharton committee, hearing about leadership applied in corporate and non-traditional settings, and will carry these lessons forward throughout my career.”

— Anant Shukla, WG’19 Executive Coaching and Feedback Program, Leadership Fellow, Authors@Wharton Student Committee, Mindfulness Workshop participant
The McNulty Leadership Program offers four fellowship programs, each with its own set of requirements and development opportunities. All four share a common commitment to the growth and development of fellow students through the process of action and reflection in service to the Wharton, Penn, Philadelphia, or global community. With the adoption of our “One Student, One Fellowship” pilot in the 2018-2019 academic year, MBA students can serve in only one role and, in this way, expand the pool of fellows.

MBA Fellowships

Lipman Family Prize Fellows

These fellows help with analysis and review of global organizations for the Lipman Prize. Lipman Family Prize Fellows help plan and execute elements of the award process. Fellows are recruited from all of the Penn graduate schools and review applications, analyze data, prepare materials for the Prize Selection Committee and help with the award ceremony where the winner is announced.

Nonprofit Board Fellows

These fellows serve as “Visiting Board Members’ and gain valuable board experience with the partner organization. Nonprofit Board Fellows match Wharton MBA and Penn Law JD students with Philadelphia area nonprofit organizations and is a unique opportunity for graduate students to get involved in the Philadelphia community. Students serve in the role of an “apprentice” for one year and participate in on-campus trainings and meetings aimed at supporting their development in the apprentice board member role.

one student, one fellowship

New for the 2018-2019 academic year and specific to MBA students, the One Student One Fellowship (OSOF) policy maximizes the number of seats in our fellowship programs, which turn maximizes the number of students who can participate in our leadership development opportunities. Past student feedback from the MBA Program Office annual stakeholder survey and an internal survey conducted by the MLP office indicated a preponderance of student support for piloting this change in policy.

OSOF applies only to the four McNulty Leadership Program fellowships, comprising the Nonprofit Board Fellows, Venture Fellows, William P. Lauder Leadership Fellows, and Lipman Prize Fellows, and adheres to the following guidelines:

- Students may apply to more than one fellowship.
- Students may be offered a position in more than one fellowship.
- Students may not accept more than one fellowship.

Fellows from the Wharton School can participate in other Leadership programming (such as P3, Executive Coaching and Feedback Program (ECFP), Authors@Wharton, Leadership Ventures, etc) and serve as fellows in other departments (such as Admissions and Student Life).
Venture Fellows

These fellows help create an environment for individual and team leadership development on specific Leadership Ventures. Venture Fellows are responsible for assisting with Venture marketing efforts and conducting pre-trip information session and activities. Fellows also serve as coaches and facilitators during ventures and collect feedback after the venture to ensure continuous improvement of the program.

William P. Lauder Wharton Leadership Fellows

These fellows act as coaches and mentors for the incoming MBA class. Lauder Leadership Fellows are charged with providing every first-year student the opportunity to enhance their leadership potential through the development of practical tools and concrete strategies applicable to every aspect of life. Fellows mentor, support and facilitate the Learning Team formation process, the MGMT 610 core course, and the 360 evaluation and feedback process.

Workshops
One to three day programs that focus on various leadership competencies.
The McNulty Leadership Program creates innovative leadership development opportunities outside of the classroom that are highly customized to the needs of our executive MBAs and working professionals. Students in the MBA for Executives East (WEMBA East) and MBA for Executives West (WEMBA West) classes each gain access to six personalized sessions with a coach as part of the Coaching and Feedback Program.

In the 2018-2019 year, both the WEMBA East and WEMBA West programs had the chance to participate in the Leadership Ventures Rowing Intensive and the Leadership Ventures WEMBA-only Alaska Venture, giving participants additional opportunities to focus on teamwork and challenge in unfamiliar contexts.

The WEMBA Capstone, which is open to all students and held on the last day of classes before graduation, served as a final day of reflection for the Wharton MBA for Executives experience. Members of Class 41 were brought together as a full class to share their reflections and what the WEMBA experience meant to them. The learning teams were reconvened and members were asked to provide feedback on each other’s leadership development as a result of their time at Wharton. Members of Class 41 came together to share their reflections on what the WEMBA experience meant to them.

“My learning team was such a valuable part of my first year growth. Knowing I had an intimate group of people to bounce ideas off of and rely on was very reassuring and our bond continued well after the first year.”

— Anant Shukla, WG’19 Executive Coaching and Feedback Program, Participant, Venture Participants

“Through my work understanding the feedback given in my 360 assessment and my subsequent work with my Executive Coach, I was able to increase my self-awareness and leadership style. I am a better manager as a result because I learned how to manage different types of people rather than applying the same style for everyone.”

— Etori Comi, WG ’19 Executive Coaching and Feedback Program Participant

In partnership with the Aresty Institute for Executive Education, the McNulty Leadership Program ran six leadership courses in the 2018-2019 academic year. These courses provide the unique opportunity to share the wealth of knowledge of our faculty with professionals at various stages of their careers.

Our flagship course, the five-week Advanced Management Program (AMP), offers comprehensive content and an experiential approach that creates an invaluable, reflective pause from the everyday CEO routine. Senior leaders who attend AMP sharpen their critical-thinking skills and hone their leadership capabilities for immediate impact to their businesses upon their return. During the five-week program, coaching is also delivered, both in teams and individually, to accelerate learning and personalized growth. To further reinforce and incorporate the lessons learned during their time with Wharton, coaching sessions continue after the program concludes.

This year marked the pilot of China AMP program (CHAMP), delivered in May in partnership with the McNulty Leadership Program for the benefit of 30 Chinese executives. Professors Mike Useem, Harbir Singh, and Jim Thomson led the pilot. They, along with Todd Henshaw and Anne Greenhalgh, provided a personal and professional defining moment for senior leaders who became better prepared to inspire higher team performance, to formulate corporate visions, and to set new directions for their organizations. The program will continue in Philadelphia in September.

With the General Management Program (GMP), senior executives are given the chance to accelerate their potential by infusing new knowledge and preparing for new challenges ahead. Designed to be completed over two years, GMP consists of six open-enrollment programs. Participants receive six coaching sessions allowing students to tailor their leadership journey to their specific needs. Similarly, the Advanced Finance Program (AFP) allows executives to take six open-enrollment finance programs within a two year period. AFP participants expand their knowledge and deepen expertise in the areas of corporate finance, investment strategies, private equity, and venture capital.

The Executive Development Program (EDP) prepares fast-track leaders to move from mastery of one focused area to success in a broader role, priming them for greater leadership responsibility in large companies and organizations. In this two week program, participants expand business acumen while benefiting from the expertise of their global classmates from a wide variety of industries and geographical regions.

Other programs delivered in partnership with the McNulty Leadership Program include:

- The two-day CEO Academy brings together 38 of the world's most well-respected current and former chief executives to share what worked while leading their companies through major change. CEOs are able to elevate their thinking about leadership and strategy and to learn from other successful leaders in a collaborative peer environment.
- The five-day Creating and Leading High-Performing Teams program is a unique executive leadership development program that combines the best insights from research and case studies, all tested in the context of hands-on, experiential learning. High Performing Teams provides managers from a wide variety of organizations with the strategic framework and tools to build and lead teams that leverage individual strengths to achieve results.
- The five-day The Adaptable Leader program is built on the philosophy that to be an effective leader in today's volatile business economy participants need to understand who they are as leaders, appreciate their roles on teams, and be able to navigate the environment in which their teams operate.
- The six-day Becoming a Leader of Leaders draws on new research and insights as well as on challenging times and pivotal leadership moments in history to provide participants with strategies to strengthen their leadership and build highly effective teams. A Leader of Leaders is run by Wharton Professors Peter Cappelli, Gregory Shea, and Mike Useem.

Executive Education participants work on team-building challenges as part of their courses.
The mission of the Center for Leadership and Change Management is to stimulate basic research and practical application in the area of leadership and change, foster an understanding of how to develop organizational leadership, and support the leadership development agendas of both the Wharton School and the University of Pennsylvania.

The Center hosted three conferences this year, beginning with the Organizational Behavior Conference in November. The conference featured presenters drawn from top junior faculty working at the cutting-edge of research in the field of organizational behavior. Led by Professor Drew Carton, attendance for the two-day, invite-only conference was kept small to provide an intimate setting that fostered collaboration, close ties, and a supportive atmosphere.

The 23rd annual Leadership Conference, entitled Leading in a Context of Conflict, was held in June 2019. The diverse lineup of speakers included former Governor of Florida, Jeb Bush; F. William McNabb III, former Chairman and CEO of Vanguard; Mark Turner, Chairman of the WSFS Bank; Judith Rodin, former President of the Rockefeller Foundation and the University of Pennsylvania; and Wharton Management Professor Stephanie Creary. Attendees emerged from the event equipped with the wealth of experience shared by these accomplished speakers and ready to face their own leadership and organizational challenges head-on.

In March of 2019, MLP supported the Identity Research Working Conference. Faculty from Harvard, INSEAD, New York University and the University of Pennsylvania. There were two round robin research presentations: "Not my Job or Is It? The role of flexible identity workspaces in managing jurisdictional ambiguity in US hospital emergency departments" by Wharton Professor Stephanie Creary; and “Who will you Become? The role of gender and parental role models in committing to professional & family identities” by University of Pennsylvania Professor Rachel Arnett.

Managed by Professor Sigal Barsade with support and administration from the Center for Leadership and Change Management, the Katz Fund for Research on Leadership and Emotional Intelligence continues to make The Wharton School preeminent in the study and teaching of emotional intelligence, organizational culture, and leadership development.

The study of emotions includes emotional intelligence (including reading emotions, understanding emotions/empathy, and emotional regulation), discrete emotions, moods, trait affect, implicit affect, and emotional labor. The field of organizational behavior covers the internal running of an organization including leadership, motivation, teamwork, decision-making, innovation, creativity, negotiations, and performance.

The Katz Fund for Research on Leadership and Emotional Intelligence will benefit organizational leaders, scholars, students, and alumni through the creation of new scholarly research, a publicly-available Emotional Intelligence test, and practitioner-oriented workshops and training.
The Barry & Marie Lipman Family Prize hosted its 8th annual award ceremony on April 26, 2019. Now in its eighth year, the Lipman Family Prize received applications from over 110 organizations—each dedicated to a range of global causes including economic development, education, environmental sustainability, gender equality, health care, human rights, food security, legal aid, safe water, poverty alleviation, and workers’ rights.

The 2019 top honoree prize of $250,000 in unrestricted funds was awarded to World Bicycle Relief, a pioneering organization that mobilizes people through “the Power of Bicycles.” They envision a world where distance is no longer a barrier to independence and livelihood. Following the announcement of the award, the ceremony featured an illuminating discussion with World Bicycle Relief that gave all in attendance a better idea of their mission, background, and business approach.

The Lipman Family Prize also honored ACEV and the Global FoodBanking Network each with $50,000 in unrestricted funds.

ACEV seeks to serve vulnerable young children, their parents, and women. Working across Turkey and internationally, ACEV works with low socioeconomic status groups and refugees.

The Global FoodBanking Network nourishes the world’s hungry through launching & strengthening food banks in more than 30 countries.

In June of 2019, Euria Min became the new Director of the Lipman Family Prize. After conducting a national search that drew close to 100 candidates, Euria was selected for her wide-ranging work experience, passion for civic leadership and demonstrated commitment to excellence. She comes to the role with experience in the for-profit, non-profit and public sectors, including most recently as Director of Operations for the Robert A. Fox Leadership Program in the School of Arts & Sciences at Penn.

Founding Director Umi Howard is still an integral member of the McNulty Leadership Program. In his new role as Senior Director, Umi is responsible for executing an external strategy for Wharton's leadership initiatives in partnership with Wharton Executive Education and Wharton External Affairs.

The Beacon Awards
The Beacon Awards will constitute a special awarding in 2020. The hope of this new and unique award structure is to incentivize Lipman Prize honorees to share innovative ideas and connect with others leading cutting-edge change.

While the annual Lipman Family Prize identifies groundbreaking innovations, the new Beacon Awards will focus on the conduit an organization uses to transfer knowledge to others. This special awarding will occur in 2020, at the Global Alumni Forum in San Francisco and will be awarded every five years thereafter. The criteria for choosing winners is designed to value transferability and knowledge sharing as a method of scaling impact; identify leading organizations that are pushing the sector forward; and highlight organizations with continued impact that are poised to expand to another level.

The Beacon Awards are only open to past honorees of the Lipman Family Prize. Two previous honorees will each receive $250,000 in unrestricted funds. The Beacon Awards reward and support previous Lipman Family Prize honorees who have demonstrated success in scaling up their social impact efforts by collaborating and sharing knowledge across their sector.

In consultation with potential prize recipients and Spring Impact, our partner in social impact scaling models, The Beacon Awards were designed to follow best practices in prize design and award process. Our transparent application process will features clear decision-making points, ensuring candidates can identify early whether they meet the criteria to progress to future selection rounds. The criteria for choosing winners take into account: value transfer and knowledge sharing as a method of scaling impact; identify leading organizations that are pushing the sector forward; and organizations with continued impact that are poised to expand to another level.
pilots partnerships and collaborations

IDEAS Lab

The McNulty Leadership Program supports the work of the IDEAS Lab, which was founded in 2017. IDEAS Lab — which stands for Identity, Diversity, Engagement, Affect, and Social Relationships — supports Wharton Organizational Behavior scholars and friends conducting research in these broad areas. Our monthly meetings serve as an informal platform to share ideas and feedback, and provide intellectual and social support to researchers in these domains.

This innovative program— a partnership between the athletics department and the Anne and John McNulty Leadership Program at the Wharton School—was conceived by David Pottruck, C'70, WG'72 to foster the leadership abilities of Penn student-athletes. In addition, Kindred Healthcare and CEO Benjamin Breier, a former baseball student-athlete at Penn, made a $500,000 gift to support the Leadership Academy. Breier has also been a key supporter of the Academy’s launch.

Beginning in a pilot phase through 2021, the academy’s curriculum includes lectures, workshops, experiential sessions and more generated through the collaboration of the athletics department and Wharton. Running in a pilot phase through 2021, the academy’s curriculum includes lectures, workshops, and experiential sessions generated through the collaboration of the athletics department and Wharton.

This fall, 14 teams of freshmen student-athletes will participate in the program. After freshman year, sophomore and junior student-athletes continue in the program based upon their interest and demonstrated leadership potential.

Team captains and coaches participate in leadership development, creating a culture where student-athletes and staff members share a common vocabulary and work together toward a common objective, in competition and beyond. At the end of the four-year cycle, a dozen senior scholar-athletes who have distinguished themselves as leaders in the Leadership Academy will be named Pottruck Fellows. Upon receiving this honor, members of this fellowship program will commit themselves to mentoring Academy participants during the next three years.

The roll out of the program is as follows:

- 2017-2018: 7 freshmen teams and their team captains
- 2018-2019: 7 freshmen teams, their captains, and select sophomores
- 2019-2020: 14 freshmen teams, their captains, and select sophomores and juniors
- 2020-2021: All freshman teams, their captains, and select sophomores, juniors, and seniors
Now in its second year, the Penn Orthopedic program brought together 37 orthopedic doctors for a one-day leadership development program facilitated by Senior Fellows Chris Maxwell and Ilene Wasserman. The day was designed to help develop skills for the next generation of Orthopedic Surgeon Leaders and empower them to effect positive change in their field.

In May of 2019, Marshall Meyer, Tsai Wan-Tsai Professor Emeritus, accompanied Tom Parsons and Anne Greenhalgh to the Penn Wharton China Center where they co-taught a seminar to the same cohort of the top pork producers in China. Against the backdrop of African Swine Fever decimating Chinese swine herds, Tom covered biosecurity and the control of trans border diseases. Against the backdrop of the trade wars, Marshall spoke with the group about the trajectory of the Chinese economy. And Anne facilitated experiential sessions on communication style and negotiating conflict. Since May, Tom and Anne have been working on plans to return to China in the 2020 academic year.

The People Lab is a collaborative effort between the McNulty Leadership Program and Wharton People Analytics (WPA). Endowed with a $2M gift from Rob Katz, People Lab is designed to advance the science and practice of using data-driven assessments and development plans to cultivate personal characteristics vital to long-term success. It is a key pillar of the student personalization strategy of the MBA program. The People Lab evolution got its start in 2013 with the first People Analytics Conference led by Professors Matthew Bidwell, Angela Duckworth, Adam Grant and Cade Massey. In 2016, a cross-functional MBA program office team outlined the personalized initiative and presented the Assessment Center Concept to the Wharton Dean’s office.

In the fall of 2019, first-year MBA students will be given the opportunity to take a range of competencies, including:

- Grit: The perseverance and passion for long term goals
- Generosity: The motivation to protect and promote the success and well-being of others

Some sample events of the past year include: an MBA women’s workshop on building your leadership brand; an all women Executive Education alumni networking panel; fireside chats with Elizabeth Vale and Carla Harris; a power couple panel featuring Leadership Advisory Board member Randi Brosterman Hutchens and her husband Bob Hutchens; a lunch and learn addressing the necessity of work/life balance; and talks with female leaders such as Amy Mihliser of PwC, Valerie Jarrett and Melinda Gates.
Established in 2004, the Leadership Advisory Board provides an essential link between the Wharton community and the foremost leaders in business, public service, government, entertainment, and sports. The board’s mission is to provide support and advice on evolving and expanding the Leadership Center’s and The Wharton School’s leadership initiatives, to identify long-term directions and objectives for the initiatives, and to assist in securing financial support for the initiatives. We continue to be grateful for the support and service of our Board Members.

Michael supports MBA, MBA for Executive, and Executive Education programming as an Administrative Coordinator. He is responsible for implementing the Leadership Development Workshop Series, and he assists the daily operation of the Executive Coaching and Feedback Program.

Prior to joining Wharton in 2019, Michael interned with curatorial departments at the Philadelphia Museum of Art, the Clark Art Institute, and the Museum of Fine Arts – Boston. He has a B.A. from the University of Massachusetts – Amherst and an M.A. from Williams College, each in Art History. Michael lives in Chinatown with his partner and her sourdough starter.

Tammy Rawls-King
Business Administrator

Tammy Rawls-King is the Business Administrator for both the Leadership Program and Center for Human Resources. Tammy began her work in the MBA Program Office where she enjoyed working with students in a supportive environment. She became interested in learning more about the academic departments and the fiscal operations at Wharton and worked as a Financial Analyst for the school in 2004. Shortly thereafter, Tammy transitioned to her current role as a Business Administrator, first for the Management and Organizational Behavior Conference, then the MBA, and will take the lead on P3 for spring 2019.

Tammy has a BA in Communications with a minor in Business from Temple University. She grew up in North Carolina and currently lives in Philadelphia with her husband Romeo, their daughter, Maja, and their puppy, Juicy.

Jules Roy
Associate Director, Wharton Leadership Ventures

Jules is Associate Director for Wharton Leadership Ventures and is the principal manager of MBA Ventures and the Venture Fellow Development Program.

Jules joined the Leadership Program in March of 2015 directly after finishing a 22-year career as an Air Force Pararescue Jumper (PJ). He has served in most conflicts since the mid-90s and has led teams to locate and rescue or recover isolated personnel in highly-contested regions and often in the face of extreme environmental circumstances.

Jules earned a B.S. from the State University of New York with a capstone study in experiential education and he is currently pursuing a Penn Masters in Organizational Dynamics.

Amanda Zimmerman
Associate Director, Undergraduate Leadership Development

Amanda is responsible for the planning and management of the TA mentoring community for Wharton 101, the gateway course for all Wharton Undergraduates. In addition, she is responsible for developing partnerships with regional organizations and local Penn partners to cultivate case studies for the Wharton student team projects and the creation of co-curricular programming.

Amanda joined the McNulty Leadership Program in 2014 as the Associate Director for the Leadership Fellows program. Her responsibilities included the management of student training, overseeing fellow selection, and developing a meaningful learning experience for the fellows and First-Year MBA community.

Previously, Amanda worked at McCombs School of Business at UT Austin. She received a BA in Communications from Penn State University and is currently pursuing her Penn Master’s in Organizational Dynamics.
